"Good news since 1895"

Thursday, February 3, 2022

Vol. 127, Number 43 Ladysmith, Wisconsin 54848

Kwik Trip expansion

Lady Smith

Plan commission to see site plan Page A3

Anglers hooked

Tournament nets big crowd Page All

Cream rises to the top

Bruce battles Cameron Page A12

Discipline concerns Ladysmith parents

City police, schools in talks to return resource officer

Council pledges rebuild

of Flambeau Avenue

By Luke Klink

Two months after Ladysmith parents complained publicly about student bullying, school and law enforcement officials are in talks to assign a part-time officer in schools. This staffing is projected to cost the school district $24,000 as part of a contract for hours of service.

School District Administrator Laura Stunkel told the Ladysmith School Board last Wednesday, Jan. 26, the officer would be a professional resource to school staff and students. The officer would build relationships within the schools and make people feel safe, she said.

"We are looking at this for the fall," Stunkel said. "It would really be about building relationships with kids, making connections with kids and having a positive police presence in the buildings."

The school board will take up this matter for consideration in the spring

By Luke Klink

year's slate of street reconstruction projects and apply for funding, which roads will be completed depends on if and when funding be-

The city council recently approved advertising for bids for E.

10th Street from Menasha to Park avenues, Lindoo Avenue from E.

Fourth to E. Sixth streets and the Summit Avenue cul-de-sac. No other streets were let for bid at the City resident Lois Goode ap-comes available.

meeting.

As Ladysmith officials plan this or summer, about when it is planning staffing for the 2022-23 school year budget.

Stunkel told the board she has had talks with Ladysmith Police Chief Kevin Julien about the proposal. "His resources are stretched thin. Our resources are stretched thin," Stunkel said.

The contract with police would need school board approval, according to Stunkel.

Last November, parents appeared at a school board meeting and expressed concerns about student safety. Several commented about an incident when a student returned from a bathroom "battered and bloodied," complaining the attacker was not immediately removed from the build-

Board members at the November meeting also sounded alarms about

Please turn to Page A9

peared at the Ladysmith Common

Council meeting, Monday, to ask when Flambeau Avenue will be improved. She noted at the council's Jan. 24 meeting the number of trafficked street with 58 homes and will be a joint project between the city and town of Flambeau. Each municipality is applying for proj-

Please turn to Page A9

one business on it," Goode said.

"Flambeau Avenue is a highly

Improving Flambeau Avenue

homes along that road.

ect funding.

RENEWING A RIVALRY - The Bruce Red Raiders and Cameron Comets line up for the singing of the National Anthem, Friday night, as fans from both chools fill the bleachers for the return of the Abbott's Dairy Trophy rivalry. Between 1936 and 2007, the Bruce and Cameron high school boy's basketball teams competed on the court. To the victor went not only bragging rights but also the coveted "Cream Can" trophy. Last week's match-up was the first "Cream Can" game in the last 15 years as area school and community leaders sought to renew the rivalry. Story on page A12.

- News photo by Luke Klink

Ryan Korver: 'It was time to take my family and go.'

Hostages slip past guards; with God their guide

By Luke Klink

Part 3 of 3 parts. One month has passed since an Ohio Christian mission agency announced its members, including a Rusk County family of four, successfully escaped

Ryan and Melodi Korver and their children, Andre, 3, and Laura, 10 months were among the hostages taken on Oct. 16 as part of a missionary group from Christian Aid Ministries of Ohio. The family, who was in Haiti for the first time and 6-1/2 months total, attends Shiloh Mennonite Church southwest of Conrath.

The captive families were from Amish, Mennonite and other Anabaptist communities in Wisconsin, Ohio, Michigan, Tennessee, Pennsylvania, Oregon and Ontario, Canada. Two were released last November and three more were set free on Dec. 5, but most of the hostages spent almost two months in captivity before being flown out of the country on Dec. 16.

Since, then Ryan is speaking publicly about their captivity, enduring faith and deliverance.

Ryan recently addressed the Shiloh Mennonite Church congregation, speaking for 2-1/2 hours. A recording of his account was obtained by the Ladysmith News. Part 1 appeared in the Jan. 20 issue. Part 2 appeared last week.

Escape plans

The missionaries were taken hostage by the 400 Mawozo Gang. From Creole, the gang's name loosely translates to "400 simpletons," or "400 inexperienced men." Haitian police issued a wanted poster for the Mawozo's alleged leader, Wilson Joseph, nearly a year ago, according to the Associated Press. He faces a string of charges that include murPart 3 of 3 parts, captivity to freedom

IN HAITI - Members of Christian Aid Ministries are photographed along a roadside in Haiti as they are picked up after escaping captivity. A group of 17 was taken hostage by armed Haitian gang members while returning to the CAM base last October. The last 12 in captivity escaped their captors several days before Christmas. Many of the group are now speaking publicly in their hometowns, offering first-hand accounts of events. Among them are Ryan and Melodi Korver, who attend Shiloh Mennonite Church southwest of Conrath.

One night we were in gangster camp trying to get a little sleep before running, and the next night we were in a hotel in Miami. It was kind of abrupt, but the Lord is good. Give him the glory. There is no reason we should have been able to walk out of there. — Area resident Ryan Korver, one of 17 taken hostage der, attempted murder, auto theft, hijacking of goods and kidnapping. Joseph goes by the Creole nickname "Lanmò Sanjou," roughly meaning: "Death doesn't know which day it's coming."

The conditions for the missionaries to escape weren't perfect. The generator, which hadn't worked for days, probably wouldn't be running to offer cover noise for the escape. The moon probably would be close to full so it wouldn't be completely dark. The guards would probably be somewhat awake.

"I felt strongly we needed to go

Contact us at 715-532-5591 or adsales@ladysmithnews.com

at the soonest opportunity," Ryan

Despite the concerns, they were ready to leave.

At 1 p.m., the time they normally prayed for deliverance, Ryan told the group about the message he be lieved he received from the Lord.

"We are going to go when we see an opportunity," Ryan said. "We are going to go. We are going to step out on faith."

The Korvers welcomed the other hostages to join them. The others

"It was time to take my family and go," Ryan said. "All of a sudden, we were unified. That was such a beautiful thing. I think that was the biggest miracle we saw. I am telling you, there is power in unity. God can bless that. We saw Him do it."

They were ready to go.

"We were all on the same page. We had a goal to work toward. That was all new territory. We had never been able to work that way before, so we started making plans," Ryan

He called it exciting to plan what to take, what to leave and how to escape all the way down to what shoes to wear — the women had flip-flops and Crocs - and how to keep fussing children quiet.

The sunset was beautiful. There was a light shower to settle the dust. The rain forced the guards to move their couches from the yard to a porch on the opposite side of the

A final signal

For the first time in days, guards delivered oil and the generator was cranked up. A working generator would offer the cover noise hostages sought to help conceal their escape.

Please turn to Page A7

Reach a larger audience

Combination rates available

File photo

Advertise in the Ladysmith News and other Bell Press publications

FLAMBEAU AVENUE - The Ladysmith city council is expressing confidence Flambeau Avenue will be improved in 2022 as it seeks joint grant funding with the town of Flambeau. The roadway straddles the boundary between the city and town. A $352,000 total projected cost would be funded with grant money and a 50 percent local match between the city and town.

County

Looking Back

Compiled by John Terrill

10 YEARS AGO (2012)

A 34-year-old Conrath man lost his life in a logging accident in Chippewa County. The victim was Anthony Knoll.

The Ladysmith School Board was looking at deficits ranging between $480,300 and $705,900 for the 2012-13 school year.

Ladysmith hunter Ralph Barten, who lost his eyesight, went to the Sedgefield Plantation in Alberta, Ala., where he received the hunter of the year award.

20 YEARS AGO (2002)

A group of Weyerhaeuser residents were looking at the feasibility of acquiring and restoring the former Soo Line depot in Weyerhaeuser. The depot was built in 1909 to replace the original depot from 1884 that was destroyed by fire on March

The Ladysmith City council approved a resolution opposing proposed cuts in state shared revenues amounting to $1.1 billion. City officials said the cuts would hurt small communities.

The biggest fish caught at the Flambeau Bassmasters' annual ice fishing contest on Amacoy Lak was a northern measuring 31 inches long.

30 YEARS AGO (1992) The Bruce School District was seeking bids for the Exeland phase of its building project.

Kiwanis clubs in Bruce and Ladysmith were conducting a penny drive for the Rusk County DARE program.

The Ladysmith City Council agreed to buy a used two-stage snowblower.

The Flambeau boys and Park Falls girls teams won their respective championships in the OLS basketball tournament.

40 YEARS AGO (1982)

Fire destroyed the Tom Sanderson home in the Flambeau Development north of Tony.

The Ladysmith City Council approved a recommendation to relocate Swanke Lumber Co. to the far west end of the new industrial park. The new mill was to be constructed for the firm as part of a federal industrial development grant.

Robert Powless was to be installed as Mount Senario College's fourth president. Wis. Gov. Lee Sherman Dreyfus, the former chancellor of UW-Stevens Point, was to speak at the ceremony.

A day-long retreat for local retailers and community leaders was to be held at Lehman's Supper Club in Rice Lake.

Jerry Lybert won the Mr. Bass trophy at the Flambeau Bassmasters an-

50 YEARS AGO (1972)

A March 6 primary was set to narrow the field of Ladysmith mayoral candidates from six to two. The candidates included Floyd Davis, Herb Beck, Dan Carter, Dorothy M. Larson, Naomi Much and Donald Rose.

The Flambeauland was hit by a storm that dumped a foot of snow. Students were dismissed early that day, but several buses became stuck as many roads became impassable. Subzero temperatures followed the

A delegation of snowmobile enthusiasts appeared at the Ladysmith City Council meeting regarding a proposed ordinance which would restrict snowmobiles to routes not maintained for wheeled traffic. Several other suggestions were made, including designating routes for snowmobiles on city streets.

A committee was being formed to conduct long-range health planning for Rusk County.

60 YEARS AGO (1962)

The Ladysmith mayor's race was between Clarence Gustafson and Herbert "Pat" Mitchell.

Rusk County Board members were join the federal surplus food pro-

The $50,000 mortgage for Sts. Peter & Paul Catholic Church in Weyerhaeuser was burned after the last payment was made.

Named as Future Homemakers of America were Cynthia Ann Wiacek of Flambeau High School and Mary Sobieski of Hawkins High School.

The corner stone was laid for the new St. Maria Goretti Catholic Church at Sheldon.

Panfish and northern pike were biting in Murphy Flowage. 70 YEARS AGO (1952)

A three-way race for mayor was to be decided by voters on April 1. The candidates were Dr. Robert Lea, Russell Plummer and Chester Burt. Paul Rogan, who took out papers, decided not to file them.

Keith Garnatz purchased an interest in the Pioneer National Bank of Ladysmith.

Ladysmith's newly-organized Baptist Church was to be holding services in the former Dairy Center School, which had been moved to Ladysmith.

The Rev. William Huntley accepted a call to become pastor of the Congregational Church in Ladys-

Members of the Blue Hills Rod & Gun Club dined on snowshoe hare they had killed in a recent mass

Charles Jaskowiak, a resident of Weyerhaeuser since 1892, died. A native of Poland, he was one of the founders of Sts. Peter & Paul Catholic Church in that community.

Ray Droege was selling Golden Anniversary Cadillacs manufactured during the company's 50th year in

80 YEARS AGO (1942)

The Rusk County Defense Council issued a warning that citizens should not make contributions to causes and campaigns unless they had been approved by the council

It was announced that new car sales in Rusk County would have to be cleared in the same way that new tire sales were. The stock of new cars was frozen as of the first of the year. Restrictions also were expected on retreads and recap tires.

The local polio drive was to be climaxed by the annual President's Ball at the Unique Roof in Ladysmith. John Dosedel's eight-piece band was to play. The ball was held on the birthday of President Franklin D. Roosevelt, himself a victim of

The Ladysmith Agency building on Miner Avenue was being remodeled. R.W. Fritz's retail liquor store was to be moved into the front of the building, which had most recently been occupied by Groom's Jeweiry and Rudy's Radio Shop.

A car stolen from blacksmith W.N. Maxon was recovered south of La-

A lack of snow resulted in a oneweek postponement of Ladysmith's Winter Carnival.

90 YEARS AGO (1932)

Ladysmith High School was preparing a pageant to observe the 200th anniversary of the birth of George Washington. Harry Anderson won first place in the poster contest. The posters were displayed to advertise the event.

Frank K. Bissell was named a county commissioner to serve out the unexpired term of O.A. Sergeant.

Rowley Crandell planned to start the local ice harvest. About 2,500 tons of ice were to be put up in three weeks by the 17-man crew.

The A & P Store was advertising three pounds of Eight O'Clock coffee for 50 cents. The Ditmanson Co. grocery department advertised three cans of Campbell's tomato soup for Admission prices were reduced at urged by the county labor council to the Unique Theater in Ladysmith.

The Sunday matinee was now 25 cents and the Sunday evening show was 35 cents. Other evening shows were 30 cents, except for bargain nights when two adults were admitted for 30 cents.

The Horlamus Hatchery in Ladysmith began its season's chick hatch.

 $10\bar{0}~YEARS~AGO~(1922)$ County clerk F.W. Munroe was slated to become postmaster of Ladysmith. He was among six eligible candidates submitted by President Harding. The nomination was to come before the U.S. Senate for ap-

Ladysmith may have found a new post office building. E.M. Worden offered the first floor of the opera house at the corner of First Street and Worden Avenue.

Frigid weather was causing problems for many Soo Line passenger trains. Nos. 7 and 85 were badly off their schedules in the forepart of the week. A switch engine in the Ladysmith rail yard was covered with frost, snow and ice as to look as it came from the polar regions.

Work on the Big Falls Dam was expected to start soon.

When Rev. C.I. Fisher opened the Christian Church one evening he found a column of fire issuing from the floor register. Firemen were summoned and they put out the fire, which was the result of burning paper that had been stuffed in the reg-

J.A. Corbett of Los Angeles, Calif., hosted a 73rd birthday party for his mother, Louisa Corbett, pioneer resident of Ladysmith. Her son Lester attended, as did other former Ladysmith residents living in Cali-

Gene Copp, who had been a lumberjack and trapper for over 25 years, was trapping with John Mitchell on Babb's Island on the North Fork of the Flambeau River. They expected to trap a thousand dollars worth of fur. The last 20 miles of the trip to their camp was made on snowshoes.

There were half a dozen wireless (radio) sets in Ladysmith. J.W. Carow installed one in his home on W. Fourth Street.

110 YEARS AGO (1912)

Ladysmith businessmen held a 'smoker" at the courthouse to discuss formation of a real estate exchange.

Direct from its second three-month run in Chicago, "The Rosary" was playing at the opera house in Lady-

The "Ladysmith News-Budget" was to be printed on Thursday afternoon, one day earlier.

A leap year dancing party was to be given at the 24 Club in Ladysmith on Feb. 14. Music was to be furnished by the Ideal Orchestra.

Sheldon settlers were hauling their logs to Sergeant's siding for loading onto rail cars.

Bud Culver was operating a roller skating rink in the opera house in La-

120 YEARS AGO (1902)

C.A. Stanley of Chippewa Falls, contractor for the Gates County Courthouse, told a Chippewa Falls newspaper that Ladysmith was the coming town on the Soo Line. The village had a population of 800 to 1,000. The Menasha Wooden Ware Co. had its plant in operation and the Menasha Paper Co. was building a pulp mill in Ladysmith.

The foundation and first floor of the Gates County Courthouse were laid and work was commenced on the outer brick falls. Completion was expected by April 1.

State school superintendent L.D. Harvey was sending a representative to Gates County to conduct a week's training for county teachers.

President Theodore Roosevelt was elected commander-in-chief of the national commandery of Spanish American War veterans.

Red Cedar Symphony performance March 5-6

The Red Cedar Symphony embarks on a musical voyage at its spring concerts on March 5 and 6.

The iconic Tales from the Vienna Woods by Johann Strauss II evokes the glittering 19th century ballrooms of Vienna; then in Africa: Fantasie for Piano and Orchestra by Camille Saint-Saens, you can hear the rhythms of the Sahara desert and the echo of camel caravans. The RCS is delighted to have north Wisconsin resident Natalie Sandor, winner of multiple awards for her piano performances, as soloist for that piece. Aaron Copland's Hoedown from unmistakably of the old American west, and Symphony No. 8 in B Minor by Franz Schubert takes us on a completely different type of journey – an internal journey to our own souls. As an added bonus, after canceling her appearance at our fall concerts due to illness, Rice Lake vocalist Mara Schack will perform two spirituals from the American south, by Florence Price.

Concerts are Saturday, March 5, at 7 p.m. at Chetek Lutheran Church, 1419 Second St. in Chetek, and Sunday, March 6, at 4 p.m., at Bethany his "cowboy ballet" Rodeo twangs Lutheran Church, 35 W. Messenger St., in Rice Lake. Tickets are $15 at the door, with those aged 21 and under admitted free. For more information, go to www.redcedarsymphony.

Established in 1983 and housed at Bethany Lutheran Church in Rice Lake, the RCS draws classical musicians from throughout northwestern Wisconsin, including Rice Lake, Osseo, Cumberland, Ladysmith, Spooner, Chetek, Gordon, Trego, Springbrook, Bruce, Hayward, Cable, Winter, Bloomer, Chippewa Falls, Eau Claire and Foster.

Hostages: Back home after captivity in Haiti

Continued from Page A1

When the time came, they pushed open a door. A large rock the guards propped against the door rolled over, landing with a noisy thud.

The hostages froze. They took off their shoes. They laid down.

A guard showed up and looked at the door.

The hostages were determined to try again. They kept an eye on the guards, but Ryan fell asleep. When we was being woke up, the door was already open and the group was ready to go. The coast was clear.

Sam Stoltzfus told the Tampa Bay Times, on the morning the hostages escaped, "Our legs were like jelly; we were shaking.

"We were scared; of course we were scared," Stoltzfus told the pa-

It was Stoltzfus who sent out the initial messages on a WhatsApp group confirming the kidnapping. He was scared, he said, because he didn't know if the message would help or make matters worse. The chat group, used to report anything of importance happening in Haiti, has about 200 members.

Stoltzfus described the group walking between seven and 10 miles in the dark, hiking through thorns and briers in gang territory. The group included a married couple, a 10-month old baby, a 3-yearold, a 14-year-old girl, a 15-year-old boy, four single men and two single women. The hostages escaped into the bushes, careful not to trip on the tangle of vines at their feet. They angled away from the house and found a footpath. They headed west looking for a spot to cross a canal. They were handing the children across and getting muddy in the process.

"That sound from the generator was fading away in the distance, and we just felt so free," Ryan said. 'The whole time I expected to be scared to death, but I just felt so strongly that the Lord is in this. I just felt peace. My heart rate was high, I'm sure, but it was fun.

The path ahead

The trail headed west, but the group wanted to go northwest. They soon met a trail going north.

"These trails were just going between people's gardens. There were no houses. It was just gardens," Ryan said.

A trail went north. A trail went west. A trail went north. A trail went

They thanked the Lord for the trails, and the moonlight.

"No one was around. It was a beautiful walk," Ryan said. A dog barked. The trail headed off, and the noise of the dog faded. 'We were just hiking out across that valley. It was flat. There was a path. It was easy going. We put some real distance behind us, pretty quick," Korver said.

The gardens eventually gave way to a brushy landscape, but the trails continued.

"It seemed like the trails were taking us in the way we wanted to go," Korver said.

The group arrived among some houses, scared homeowners might be woken if they heard noises out-

They arrived at a village. They encountered a donkey that didn't

They walked down a main street. A rooster crowed. They entered a thorny thicket, where they lost the trail. They forged ahead, carrying children and always seeming to find a way. The footing got worse as the ground grew rocky. Dawn arrived. They reached a road, hoping to get to Hwy. 3 they

They followed a trail, then a cow path. "I think it was the Lord leading,"

could see in the distance.

Haitian bills.

Korver said. The group broke out on a hillside. The sun rose.

They were close to Hwy. 3, trying their best to stay hidden. Two hostages went out to find someone with a phone. Those behind began rummaging through given. their bags hoping to find a $20 bill, but managed only a few smaller "Just a small bill was just right for tipping someone for letting us use their phone. It was a blessing," years, and Laura, 10 months, were among the hostages.

Ryan said.

Finally, they came upon a Haitian farmer and asked if he had a cell phone. He did not, but later pointed them in the direction of a house with a red door where two church musicians were practicing.

phone but there were no minutes on it. They asked could you get some minutes on the phone if we gave you a little money," Ryan said. After giving the phone owner the equivalent of $5 to ride a bike to the store to buy minutes, Stoltzfus called the ministry's country director and said, "Barry, we got out. The Lord delivered us. Ryan told his congregation Grant seemed, "Quite shocked to hear from us." "He said he was getting in his truck right now...and coming as quick as they can get there.' At this moment, they were near Route National 3 near Morne à Cabrit, at the edge of the gang's territory. The hostages were picked up and taken back to CAM. They received medical care. A Coast Guard plane was coming at 2 p.m. to take the group back to Florida. "Very hastily we threw things into our bags and headed to the airport,"

Ryan said. There were a dozen vehicles in the motorcade including armored Suburbans from the embassy, police vehicles and CAM vehicles, according to Ryan. The traffic was so bad we went down the middle of the street, and the police stepped out and walked on foot to clear the way. They waved their assault rifles around, and people got out of the way. That is how fast our progress was getting to the airport. They were in a terrible hurry to get us flown out," Ryan said.

Was ransom paid? As hostages and family members speak publicly around their hometowns, it appears some ransom money was paid.

Ray Noecker told a FOX-TV affiliate, WXMI in Michigan a negotiated ransom was paid on Dec. 5 to release all of the hostages, but a division within the gang resulted in only three people, including his wife and youngest son, to be released. According to Ray, he did not know who paid it or how much was

"We feel like God is in control of our life and we want to be doing His will," Ray told WXMI. "One of the things that reassured me when my family was in captivity was I knew that God had called us and wanted us to be in Haiti."

We live each day with a level of risk," Noecker said. "Things can happen no matter where we're at. We also need to look at the needs of the world around us."

Haiti Country Supervisor provided a 20-minute account, delivered Dec. 26 at Mt. Moriah Mennonite Church in Crossville, Tenn., according to the online religious news publication, Kentucky Today. Mast tells of a ransom being paid before the hostages escaped, indicating the ransom might have been for the first hostages released in November, but details of any ransom were not revealed.

Phillip Mast, Christian Aid Min-

"In the course of this whole thing, there was Christian Aid Ministries no-ransom policy," Mast said. "But also in the course of the situation, there was a donor who offered to take the negotiations and deal with the situation, and so CAM accepted that offer, and it was turned over to another party to deal with it, and so one of the questions that I'm sure comes up is, was ransom paid?"

In a press conference, David Troyer, general director of Christian Aid Ministries, in Berlin, Ohio, said all of the hostages seem to be "doing reasonably well.'

Troyer said many people reached out, including those who offered to provide funds to pay a ransom. He declined to offer any further details.

"After many days of waiting, and no action on the part of the kidnappers, God worked in a miraculous way and enabled the hostages to escape," he said.

The group was taken out of the country on a Coast Guard flight to Florida. They spent six hours Friday with the FBI sharing their story.

"The first release was because of sickness, the second release was also in part due to the large sores that the two ladies had, but the truth of the matter was that the deal had been made," Mast said. "Yes, there was ransom paid, but I don't think they had the intention of releasing the prisoners.

Home and safe

The Korvers are relieved to be home, giving all the glory to God.

"One night we were in gangster camp trying to get a little sleep before running, and the next night we were in a hotel in Miami. It was kind of abrupt, but the Lord is good. Give him the glory. There is no reason we should have been able to walk out of there. We want to praise the Lord for his deliverance and want to be faithful in sharing what God has done for us." Korver said

Indianhead offers business development grant Indianhead Community Action an increase in requests for help with new business start-ups in many of Agency is offering a $5,000 grant supporting the Business Development program to help entrepreneurs in 12 counties in northwestern Wisconsin. Small business owners can receive free one-on-one help with business planning, marketing, advertising, website design and more. This grant is provided by Compeer Financial, whose mission is enriching agriculture and rural areas. Anna Ringstad, Business Development Manager, said, "We've seen our rural counties, which is a wonderful change of pace from 2020. These dedicated entrepreneurs are actively looking for ways to enrich northwestern Wisconsin communities and we're so grateful for the opportunity to further Compeer Financial's mission to accomplish this." ICAA's Business Development program helps entrepreneurs and small businesses make smart business decisions for their current needs, while providing guidance and support for future challenges through a variety of services, resources, and one-on-one consultations. Since its launch in 1999, the Business Development program has assisted more than 130 businesses with launching their startup across northwestern Wisconsin, which has created more than 200 full-time jobs within the program's 12-county ser-

For more information, call 715-532-4222 or go to www.icaabd.org.

