ATV route over river is planned

By GILLIAN POMPLUN
A much-anticipated ATV/UTV route connecting Crawford County to the City of Boscobel is moving toward approval. The route will run along Highway 60, from the Crawford County Highway E intersection to the intersection with Highway 61, and then along Highway 61 across the Wisconsin River bridge.

The City of Boscobel held a meeting with Wisconsin Department of Transportation (DOT) employee Steve Flottmeyer to discuss the steps needed to make the route a reality on January 12. The meeting was also attended by Crawford County Highway Commissioner, Kyle Kozelka, and Wisconsin State Representative Travis Tranel.

"The City of Boscobel has requested permission from DOT to use a stretch of Highway 60 in Crawford County, and Highway 61 across the bridge over the Wisconsin River, as a route for ATV/UTV traffic," Flottmeyer said. "In order for DOT to approve this use, one municipality on each side of the bridge would have to adopt an ordinance approving the use."

At their January 17 meeting, the Boscobel Common Council approved a resolution requesting that DOT approve ATV/UTV use across the Highway 61 North Bridge across the Wisconsin River within Boscobel, pursuant to Chapter 7.165 of the City of Boscobel Municipal Code.

According to Marietta Township Clerk Clifford Monroe, the town board passed a resolution supporting the route at a meeting in 2020, and is working with the DOT at present to ensure their support for the project.

Zoning technician hired for position

By GILLIAN POMPLUN
Crawford County Conservationist Dave Troester informed the Land Conservation Committee at their January 11 meeting that he has hired a new zoning technician. Jon Mayer, a recent graduate of UW-Stevens Point, will begin in his new role on Monday, Jan. 24. The position has been empty since previous zoning technician Jake Shedivy resigned in August of 2021.

"To begin with we're going to get Jon working with Angela from the Vernon County Zoning and Sanitation Department," Troester told the committee. "We hope to have him certified within a couple of months, hopefully prior to the major influx of sanitary permit applications coming in next spring."

To pursue his certification as a septic system inspector, Mayer will participate in the Private Onsite Wastewater Treatment System (POWTS) Inspector training being put on by the Wisconsin Department of Safety and Professional Services (DSPS) in Stevens Point, and a POWTS basic academy, being hosted virtually by the Wisconsin Onsite Water Recycling Association (WOWRA).

In addition to administering the POWTS system in the county, and spearheading the project to ensure all systems in the county are in compliance,

You can call them the Royals now

Seneca approves new mascot

By CHARLEY PREUSSER
"Royals it is!" a man yelled after the Seneca School Board approved the new mascot at their meeting Monday night.

Seneca once again has a mascot for its athletic teams and other activities—it's the Royals.

After a review of the mascot selection process by Seneca School District Administrator Dave Boland, Tyler Aspenson made a motion and Charles Clark seconded it to make the Royals the new mascot. The board approved it unanimously.

Seneca started a long selection process in 2021 to find a new mascot to replace the 'Indians' due to cultural concerns around using Native American names as school mascots.

In explaining the selection process, Boland said two names rose to the top, with four others in positions below them.

In addition to Royals, the other popular mascot was the Storm. Going head-to-head among students, community members and alumni, the Royals was clearly favored on percentages ranging from 60 to 40 to 65 to 35 with slight variations among the different groups.

Boland told the board that schools often employ companies to develop images and promotional ideas around a newly adopted mascot.

It was suggested that alumni Ryan Meyers, who was well-known artist at the school, might be contacted to work on the project of developing images for the new mascot.

While everyone seemed rather pleased that the mascot selection had been completed, that's not how the meeting started.

Masking, testing and other COVID concerns were the primary focus of most of the meeting. About 30 to 35 people attended the meeting and a significant number of them opposed the return to masking in the light of a recent surge in COVID infections.

However, the first concern addressed under the public input portion of the meeting was not masking, but open windows. Several parents said that windows being opened to promote ventilation in attempts to stymie COVID transmission, were resulting in uncomfortably cold classrooms. Boland and several staff members acknowledged windows were opened, but disputed the idea that it created uncomfortably cold conditions.

Several parents took issue with the idea of open windows in January.

Students are able to wear additional clothing and, if they chose to, could bring blankets to school, Boland told the concerned parents.

After the public comment session ended, the first item on the agenda under new business was the current COVID policies.

Because of a surge in cases last week, the mask optional policy was changed to mandatory masking.

Boland and school secretary Ashley Roberts explained that the number of cases had crossed a threshold set in the school's matrix that called for masking.

Boland explained the nine cases in eight households pushed the district over the threshold previously established for masking.

Five cases last Wednesday

Ashley Roberts confirmed there were five cases in the district on Wednesday, Jan. 12.

One person questioned if cases were being removed from the list and the number lowered as students recovered. Roberts said the number was actually increasing with more cases being reported.

In answer to a question, Roberts said the current test used by the district is only to confirm the presence or lack of presence of COVID, it does not identify the specific variant of COVID.

Masking opponents, as they have at previous meetings, disputed the effectiveness of masking and insisted that wearing or not wearing masks was a decision that should be left to parents and not made by the district.

Byron Aspenson emphasized his opinion that masks were ineffective and said he would provide information from OSHA (Occupational Safety and Health Agency) on the subject of mask's effectiveness.

Later, in the meeting, he did read from a story that quoted OSHA findings talking about

North Crawford

Error is made on the ballot

By CHARLEY PREUSSER

A mistake has been made on the 2022 North Crawford School Board spring ballot, the school district acknowledged last week.

North Crawford School District Administrator Brandon Munson told the Independent-Scout that a clerical error had been made in the election process.

Following inquiries about the ballot from the Independent-Scout, the district contacted the Wisconsin Elections Board seeking advice on the situation. The district was told to proceed with the election with the ballot that has been created.

"They told us to go with what we had, since it is past all deadlines to correct it," Munson said. "It will be addressed by the board after the April election."

The North Crawford School District later clarified the situation even further in an official statement.

District administrator Brandon Munson confirmed, there are five candidates, running for two seats on the current ballot. One position is a three-year term and the other is a one-year term.

It appears that the ballot should include not one, but two three-year terms and the one one-year term, according to research done by the Crawford County Independent & Kickapoo Scout.

"We consulted with the WEC and they instructed us to proceed and hold a primary election," Munson explained in a written statement last Thursday. "The position that should have been... (on the ballot) in the election will end as of April 24, 2022. Depending on the decision of the (North Crawford) School Board, someone will be appointed to the position, the position will remain vacant, or a special election will be held to fill the position."

District pauses its 'test to stay'

By GILLIAN POMPLUN

North Crawford School Nurse John Powell says that the Wisconsin Department of Health Services (DHS) has informed the district that COVID-19 rapid antigen tests are 'temporarily unavailable' from their supplier. This is due to a nationwide shortage of the tests.

"As of Monday, Jan. 17, the district has 21 total active cases, and more students and staff excluded than if were still able to offer the test-to-stay option," Powell said. "We're not sure when DHS will once again be able to supply us with the tests, but our hope is we will once again have tests by the end of January, and possibly as soon as next week."

Those 21 total cases among students and staff include 11 in the elementary school, four in the middle school, and six in the high school. There are currently 31 exclusions, and 52 total active quarantine cases.

Even when tests begin to be available from DHS, Powell said he is not sure if it will be as many as were previously available or not.

"We'll cross that bridge when we come to it," Powell said. "Our main priority remains to keep our district open for in-person instruction, and keep our students and staff safe."

Participating in a program encouraged by Wisconsin Department of Health Services, the North Crawford School District has been working with a 'test-to-stay' protocol for managing COVID-19 within the district. The protocol was approved for use by the North Crawford School Board at their October 2021 meeting.

The position that will end on April 24, 2022 is currently a board seat held by Jesse Swenson. The initial clerical error that resulted in this situation occurred in the 2021 school board election. On that ballot there was a two-year term added to the two regularly scheduled three-year terms. The two-year term offered on the 2021 ballot actually should have been a one-year term to fill out the last year of three-year term initially won by Tanya Forkash in 2019.

The appointments, elections and resignations of three school board members in a short period of time resulted in confusion over the terms being served. This ultimately led to the ballot error in the 2021 election, which created a subsequent error in the 2022 ballot.

So, what happened?

Perhaps, a good place to start is the 2018 school board election, where Jesse Swenson was elected in April and resigned in May to serve as the girls track coach.

The board decided to appoint someone to serve out that term until the remainder of the position could be added to the 2019 ballot.

The board nominated four people, each seeking the appointment. After eight ballots the board settled on appointing Tanya Forkash to serve Swenson's vacated position until the remaining two years of the term could be filled in the 2019 board election.

So in the 2019 board election in April, there were two three-year terms and one two-year term. There were five candidates.

Forkash got the most votes with 425 and Kuhn and were next with 416—both candidates got three-year terms that would've been up for election in 2022. Incumbent board member Terry O'Donnell got 388 votes and won a two-year term. The other candidates were Stefonek with 269 votes and Heisz with 354 votes.

Then in September of 2019, just five months into her new three-year term Forkash resigned and the board appointed Stefonek to serve until the 2020 election.

In the 2020 election, there were two three-year terms and one two-year term and four candidates. Forkash, who had decided to run again after resigning in September, got 579 votes and one of the three-year terms; Heisz got 521 votes and the other three-year term. Jill Stefonek got 487 votes and the two-year term—that was the remainder of Forkash's 2019 term. The fourth candidate Wade Dull got 422 votes. Both three-year terms will expire in 2023 and the two-year term was set to expire in 2022.

However, Stefonek moved out of the district later 2020 and had to resign from the board. The board discussed the situation and decided to not appoint anyone and fill the remainder of the term in the 2021 election.

At this point, the clerical error occurred on the 2021 ballot. The 2021 election offered three three-year terms.

It should also have offered a one-year term to fill out the remaining year of Stefonek's term, filling out the 2019 term of Forkash, which was set to expire in 2022. Instead the ballot listed the fourth position as a two-year term, putting its expiration date in 2023. Six candidates vied for the four positions. The incumbents won the top three positions and won the three-year terms. Terry O'Donnell got 406 votes; Judy Powell got 390 votes and Jim Dworschack got 370 votes. Jesse Swenson got 329 votes and believed she had won the two-year position listed on the ballot. Unfortunately, the position was listed incorrectly and should've been a one-year position that expires in 2022 and would provide the other three-year term.

So, the ballot error in 2021 listing the term from 2019 as a two-year term created an error in the 2022 ballot because it resulted in omitting the second three-year term that should be available.

Nationwide COVID test shortage impacts North Crawford 'test to stay'

That protocol uses rapid antigen tests for COVID-19. The rapid antigen test yields a result in 15 minutes, and has been found to be about 85 percent accurate for positive test results, and 99 percent accurate for negative test results. The testing is a DHS program, and is available at no cost to the district.

The policy stipulates that unvaccinated students identified as close contacts to a positive case that is not a household member, and who are asymptomatic, will be able to stay at school for the duration of the quarantine period, if they receive a nega-

Wait there's more. Because her family moved out of the district, Forkash was forced to resign in 2021 from the three-year term she won in the 2020 election. The board considered appointing several candidates to fill out the term until the 2022 election and settled on Jerry Coleman.

So the ballot as it stands offers two positions—the three-year term and the one-year term.

Since there are five candidates running (more than two per position) a primary election is scheduled for February 15. The top four vote-getters will appear on the April ballot. The five candidates on the primary ballot are Mary Kuhn, Melany Jelinek, Kimberly Blaha, Charissa Anne Richter and Jerry Coleman.

After the April election the newly constituted board will tackle the problem created by the three-year term not being included on the 2022 ballot and the position that board member Jesse Swenson holds now will terminate on April 24, 2022, according to the district.

"We currently have 21 total cases among students and staff in the district," Powell reported on Monday, Jan. 17. "We are working very hard as we speak to determine the masking policy for each school starting this Wednesday."

effect on Wednesday, Jan. 19. That matrix creates the flexibility to implement a mask mandate on a school-by-school basis in the elementary, middle and high schools.

With 247 students in the elementary school, masking will be optional with 0-7 cases, and mandatory with eight or more individual cases. In the middle school, with 126 students, masking will be optional with 0-3 cases, and mandatory with four or more individual cases. In the high school, with 182 students, masking will be optional with 0-5 cases, and mandatory with six or more cases.

Wait there's more. Because her family moved out of the district, Forkash was forced to resign in 2021 from the three-year term she won in the 2020 election. The board considered appointing several candidates to fill out the term until the 2022 election and settled on Jerry Coleman.

So the ballot as it stands offers two positions—the three-year term and the one-year term.
