Augmento, UW Oshkosh's first fictional superhero, was featured in a comic strip of the same name in The Advance-Titan created by UWO alumni in the '70s. The series, which started as a hobby for three friends, became a form of edgy rebellion, creativity and expression for opinions on people and things around campus.

In the beginning . . .

The Arts and Communications Center (A&C) opened in 1971 and hosted the fields of visual and performing arts, theater, broadcasting and music. Many artists and performers found their place in the fine arts department headquartered in A&C.

Some of these creative students included Bill Bukowski and Mark Gruenwald. One of their finest collaborations was Augmento, UWO's first comic superhero.

The comic strip first started as a hobby of Bukowski's as he worked as an artist for the Advance-Titan.

Before joining the A-T, Bukowski worked both in the cafeteria and as a janitor in Nelson Hall in an attempt to use his work study. He hated both of those jobs and sought other opportuni-

In his art career, Bukowski participated in 175 Midwestern exhibitions and designed altarpieces and religious paintings for churches across the U.S.

He retired from teaching after 40 years and donated his original Augmento collection to the UWO Archives and Area Research Center in 2020.

After retiring from the USPS, he continues to perform music. He runs a Facebook page for Augmento, his alter ego, sharing memories from those glory days.

While the Augmento comic series ended its time in the A-T and at UWO, its legacy lives on through the memories.

"I do think those times in Oshkosh were very creative and very exciting,' Bukowski said. "I think as a university, they should be proud of those times. (Great things) can happen in Oshkosh – you don't have to be in New York or on the East or West coast."

Meet the cast:

Bill Bukowski -Native of Wisconsin Rapids.

From 1972-74, Bukowski was an art student at UWO. He is the original creator of Augmento and aspired to be a professional artist.

"I remember consciously in kindergarten I was always an artist," Bukowski said. "I was trying to decide if I should go into film or art (in high school). I kind of flipped a coin and decided art. I wanted to be a comic book artist when I came to Oshkosh. It just seemed like the right thing."

Mark Gruenwald -Oshkosh born and raised. Died Aug. 12, 1996, in Pawling, New York.

Gruenwald joined Bukowski in developing "Augmento" into a more elaborate comic strip. His encyclopedic knowledge on comics contributed to his impressive storytelling.

"In high school he was very much into comics when I first met him," Gruenwald's high school friend J. Mark Madison said. "He had a lot of (comics). He had these shelves, and each one in a special plastic sleeve. He was attracted by storylines and by the artistry of it."

Rick Gilbertson -Hailed from near Columbus, Wisconsin.

Gilbertson, a music major, was Bukowski's college roommate and was the inspiration for the look of Augmento with his "good looks" and "curly locks."

"I guess my fame comes from Augmento, but that was really my best friend at the time and roommate who drew the comic strip," Gilbertson said. "I was basically just the face that he thought had comic potential."
