Welcome Our New Editor

The Times-Tribune is pleased to announce that Alec Finger has taken over as news editor. Finger, who grew up in Madison, is a graduate of Edgewood High School and Iowa State University, where he studied Psychology and Criminal Justice. His family has been in the newspaper business for a quarter century, and he joins his father, Tom and his mother, Pam at Finger Publishing, which owns the Times-Tribune.

“Strong communities are built on what their members contribute,” he said. “Middleton and Cross Plains have been a shining example of the bonds that can be fostered among residents. As your new editor, I am committed to prioritizing honest truth over personal biases and delivering the news that matters most to the people of your community.”

You can reach Finger at timestribuneeditor@finger-pub.com.

Matt Geiger will remain as the newspaper’s executive editor.
